

Dear Minister

Why not make it even simpler the whole process.

Every citizen who reaches age of 18 is by law permitted to vote in any elections.

Similar system exists in other EU countries, when citizen reaches 18, they get national ID and with that ID or passport they can vote without actually registering. They are automatically submitted in the registry of their place of residency. If they change residency, all they have to do is go to other council and inform them about it, and their privilege is being transferred to the new place.

Simple, no extra forms or confusions or "accidental" removals from the existing registry.

Kind Regards

Anita Copperthwaite
