

Hello,

I know you're looking for suggestions about making it easier to vote, but I think the whole process needs a review:

Voting would be easier if elections / referenda were held on Saturdays

This would make it easier for childcare & remove the need for primary school closures

It would enable people working / studying away from home to make it home to vote

Easier for people overseas to make it home as in the Marriage Referendum

Make the most recent / correct register available online - I checked the register online last year & neither I, my husband or oldest son were on the register.

We subsequently received voting papers regardless.

My son (who wasn't in the online register) always receives 2 voting papers - despite having informed the people manning the polling station several times.

There should be a review of the list after elections & duplications or deaths that have been brought to attention should be taken into account.

This should be a simple process, and able to be carried out without waiting for the large planned reforms.

Regards,
Esther Tallon.