

Reform is needed and the process needs to be simplified. I was registered and moved house and when I went to update my address on the register, it had be cancelled by the new resident of my old home. A voting card also comes to my home address which I haven't lived at for 15 years, surely if a vote isn't used for many years it should need to be verified. My local Garda station is rarely open and it is very inconvenient to have to go to the Garda station to have all the forms signed.

Online registration would be ideal for me but I think there should be an alternative option for those who do not have internet access or the ability to register online.
